The ultra-high-density process increases the woven structure area by approximately 40%, ensuring that dust, oil film, and other contaminants are effectively wiped away. Have you ever felt discomfort while wearing rubber gloves?

When you wear rubber gloves, your hands can get sweaty, leading to discomfort. Rubber gloves have poor ventilation, so when your hands sweat, moisture builds up inside, causing the gloves to become stuffy. To reduce hand sweat, it's effective to wear thin gloves made of sweat-absorbing materials underneath, rather than wearing rubber gloves directly on bare skin.
